

KALAMAZOO CHRISTIAN SCHOOLS

Undeniably Christian. Academically Excellent.

“Legacy”

The word that has struck me the most so far this school year is Legacy. Legacy focuses on things that will endure. 145 years of Christian education in Kalamazoo is a long time. 145 years is much to celebrate. Current students and Alumni leaning into their faith in order to take the love of Jesus into the world, Legacy. For those who have walked these halls ahead of us, for those who walk these halls today, and for those who will walk these halls in the years to come, we find ourselves part of something special. Something bigger than each individual. Something blessed by God above. I've had the privilege of meeting students and families who are new to us this year, and meeting those who represent family traditions over many generations. Now, more than ever before, Christian education has significance. Not only are we academically excellent, but we remain undeniably Christian. In our ever changing world, a world that is seemingly moving further away from the teachings of Christ, we prepare our students to be beacons. Legacy remembers. Just as the Israelites built an altar made of standing stones in Gilgal in order to remember their crossing of the Jordan River into the Promised Land, let's also remember that without God before us, our legacy might look much different. One thing is certain; God has created this community to bring glory to Himself. What an honor to be part of this legacy. Kalamazoo Christian Schools, established 1877.

- Scott Pease, Development Director

